Why attend

Many organisations collect large amounts of data but still make important decisions on instinct. This course helps leaders build a data-driven culture by setting a data strategy, establishing governance, developing data literacy, creating trusted reporting, and embedding analytics into everyday decision processes.

Technology alone does not make an organisation data-driven; people, processes and leadership do. You will learn a practical path to better, evidence-based decisions.

Professional Problems This Course Is Designed to Solve

- Difficulty translating subject knowledge into practical workplace decisions.
- Inconsistent approaches to the activities covered in the course outline.
- Lack of a structured plan for applying and reviewing new skills.

Course methodology

Maturity assessments, strategy workshops, case studies of data transformations and decision-process redesign exercises.

Course objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Assess the organisation's data maturity
- Develop a data strategy linked to business goals
- Establish data governance and ownership
- Build data literacy across teams
- Create trusted reporting and single sources of truth
- Embed analytics in decision making

Target audience

This course is suitable for:

- Senior leaders and executives
- Heads of data and analytics
- Strategy and performance managers
- Department heads
- Digital transformation leaders

Course content

Target competencies

Participants will develop competencies in:

- Data strategy
- Governance design
- Culture change
- Decision process design
- Leadership
