Why attend

Senior roles depend as much on how leaders are perceived as on what they know. This five-day course helps managers and executives build the credibility, composure and influence needed to lead meetings, win support for ideas and represent their organisation with confidence. Participants work on how they communicate under pressure, how they read and engage different stakeholders, and how they build trust across functions and levels. Practical exercises, peer feedback and recorded practice turn concepts into habits that can be applied immediately at work.

Many capable professionals are overlooked for senior responsibilities because their ideas do not land with decision-makers. This course helps you understand the components of executive presence, from gravitas and clarity to listening and composure, and gives you practical techniques to influence without formal authority. You will leave with a personal presence and influence plan built around the real situations you face.

Professional Problems This Course Is Designed to Solve

• Difficulty translating subject knowledge into practical workplace decisions.
• Inconsistent approaches to the activities covered in the course outline.
• Lack of a structured plan for applying and reviewing new skills.

Course methodology

The course combines short facilitator inputs with practical exercises, recorded presentation practice, stakeholder mapping, role plays of difficult conversations and structured peer feedback. Participants apply each technique to scenarios from their own role and build a personal development plan over the five days.

Course objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:
• Explain the behaviours and signals that shape executive presence
• Communicate key messages clearly and concisely to senior audiences
• Map stakeholders and plan influence strategies for important decisions
• Stay composed and credible in high-pressure meetings and challenging conversations
• Use storytelling and evidence to win support for ideas and proposals
