Why attend

In today's fast-moving digital world, a crisis can escalate within minutes and severely damage an organization's reputation, operations, and stakeholder trust. Effective media management during crises is essential to control the narrative, reduce misinformation, and maintain public confidence.

In today's fast-moving digital world, a crisis can escalate within minutes and severely damage an organization's reputation, operations, and stakeholder trust. Effective media management during crises is essential to control the narrative, reduce misinformation, and maintain public confidence. This course equips participants with practical skills to manage media relations, communicate effectively under pressure, and develop structured crisis communication strategies that protect organizational reputation and ensure timely, transparent messaging.

Professional Problems This Course Is Designed to Solve

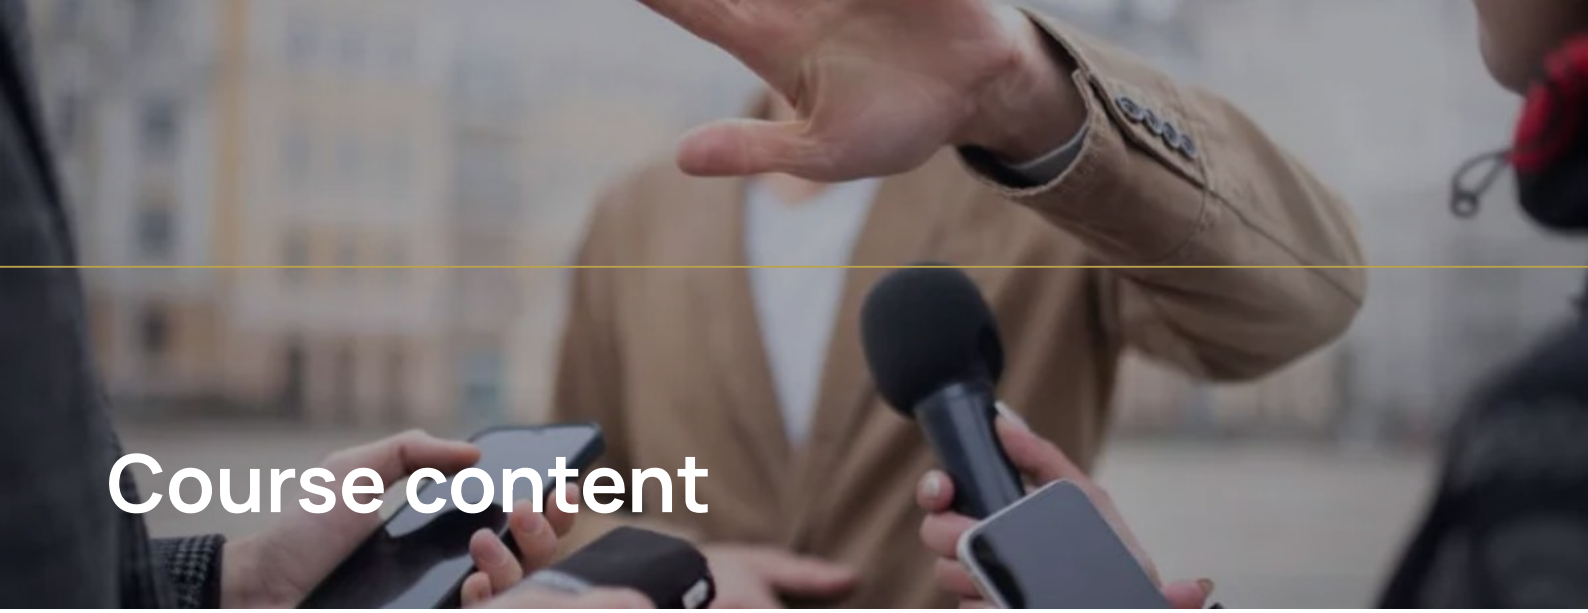

• Difficulty translating subject knowledge into practical workplace decisions.
• Inconsistent approaches to the activities covered in the course outline.
• Lack of a structured plan for applying and reviewing new skills.

Course methodology

This course combines communication theory with realistic crisis simulations and media handling exercises. Participants will engage in press briefing role-plays, crisis scenario workshops, and message development exercises. Case studies from real-world corporate, governmental, and industrial crises will be analyzed. Practical sessions will focus on spokesperson training, media response planning, and digital communication strategies.

Course objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:
• Understand principles of crisis communication and media management
• Develop structured crisis communication plans
• Respond effectively to media inquiries during crises
• Manage organizational reputation under pressure
• Deliver clear, consistent, and timely messages
• Handle social media communication during emergencies
• Identify and mitigate communication risks
• Act as an effective spokesperson in crisis situations
